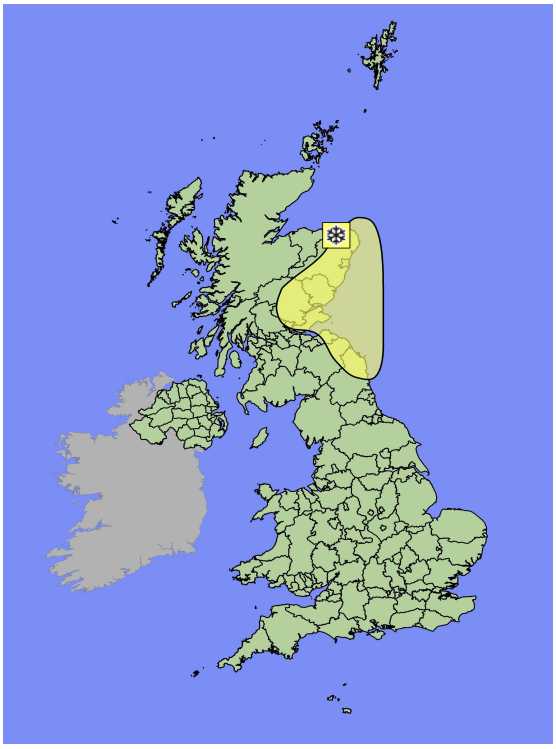
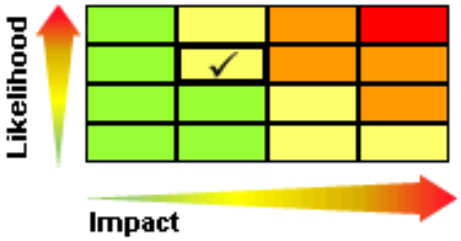
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A slow moving frontal zone will linger over parts of eastern Scotland and far northeast of England overnight Tuesday and through most of Wednesday. Expect further snowfall inland and over hills and a mix of rain, sleet and snow over low lying coastal areas.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Snow

Valid from 00:05 on Wed, 23rd Jan 2013 until 21:00 on Wed, 23rd Jan 2013

Further snow is expected over parts of eastern Scotland and northeast England Tuesday night into Wednesday. The snow will gradually turn more patchy during Wednesday and probably largely die out later Wednesday. Over lower lying coastal areas accumulations are expected to be small whilst inland accumulations of 1-3 cm are widely expected and above 200 m in excess of 5 cm is possible. During the evening temperatures will fall sharply and icy stretches are likely on untreated surfaces.
The public should be aware of the risk of disruption, particularly to travel.
